

Labor Day holiday proves one of safest in decades

By The Associated Press
Fewer than 400 persons were killed in traffic accidents over the Labor Day weekend—one of the safest three-day holiday periods in decades.
The Associated Press counted 392 traffic fatalities on the nation's roads during the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday local time.

Officials of the National Safety Council, which before the holiday estimated between 460 and 560 persons could lose their lives in traffic accidents during the period, had no immediate explanation.

"It's quite surprising, very definitely it's low," said Jack Recht, manager of the Safety Council's statistics section. "As a matter of fact, we'd have to go back in the records to see if there is anything near it."
However, records of The AP, which has been counting holiday traffic deaths since 1946, show the 392 fatalities are the fewest over a 78-hour Labor Day period since 1961 when 386 persons were killed on the nation's roads.

The only other years in which fewer than 400 persons died in traffic accidents during the last long, warm-weather weekend, were 1954, 1950 and 1946-48.

Last year, 515 persons were killed during the Labor Day period and at that time it was the safest Labor Day weekend since 1962.
But last year, Recht pointed out, traffic fatalities were markedly lower than previous years due to effects of the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit and concern over gasoline shortages.

This year, he said, gasoline supplies have loosened and compliance with the 55 mph limit would be no better than last year.

As a result, he said, fatalities have been up generally about 4 per cent from last year and travel itself has been up about 6 per cent.
The 1975 Labor Day figures, he said, conflict with these trends.

Threat of blasts keeps Des Moines firemen edgy

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Fire fighters played a waiting game Tuesday with railroad cars of propane gas after other cars exploded and forced evacuation of two square miles of factories, warehouses and homes.

The blasts, which followed the derailment of a Rock Island Lines freight train just northeast of the city limits, blew a motorcyclist from the Interstate 80 overpass a few yards away. The cyclist, Von Ray Abbott, 32, Des Moines, was in fair condition at a hospital later.

Louise Stout, 55, Des Moines, was in satisfactory condition at a hospital and a fireman from Saylor Township, Dwight Warner, was treated for burns at a hospital and was released.

As darkness fell, hours after the first explosions, Polk County Sheriff's Lt. David Long worried that other victims may be lying injured near the derailment. "But we're not sending anybody up there to look," he said.

Witnesses counted five blasts late Monday afternoon and huge balls of fire wafted into the sky after each explosion of containers of propane and liquid petroleum fuel.

The derailment of the train, traveling from Minneapolis to Kansas City, occurred in an area of farm fields and at least a half-mile from the nearest building. The freight was made up of 50 loaded cars and 19 empty ones.

Polk County Sheriff's Deputy Joe Lozano, 30, was nearby when the first explosion occurred.

"When the first tank blew, it was just a great big ball of flame, just like a bomb going off, and it looked like it just went across the interstate," the law officer said.

Marguerite Cebuhar, a desk clerk at a nearby motel, was leaving the interstate when "this great big ball rose — it look like pictures you see of the A-bomb," she said. "I never saw anything like it."

Deputy Lozano knew the blast had occurred perilously near the interstate highway. "I started to walk up (to the highway), but I figured if there was going to be another explosion, I was not going to be any help."

Although the derailment was outside their city limits, Des Moines firemen rushed to the scene. More than 100 fire fighters from Pleasant Hill, Delaware Township, Mitchellville, Altoona, Ankeny, Saylor Township, Polk City, Des Moines and West Des Moines tried to battle the flames.

But their was the likelihood that more explosions would follow.

One fire fighter said crews could not get close enough to the flames to extinguish them.

Des Moines Police Patrolman Anthony Gomez was about 1,000 yards from the derailment with firemen when "I heard a hissing sound. I kept yelling at people, 'Get out! It's going to go.'"

"Then it went. I was hit in the back with a piece of shrapnel and it knocked me to the ground."

Robert Branton, an assistant superintendent of the Rock Island Lines, said five cars had ruptured and burned, three were burning into the evening and three others were intact.

The five explosions shortly after the derailment were heard as far away as Newton, 30 miles away.

Warehouses and businesses in the area suffered broken windows and stove-in overhead doors.

Norman Sluis, owner of Tucker's Truck & Equipment Co. seven blocks from the derailment, said the concussion blew in the roof of his office.

National Steel Service Center, Inc., about a half-mile west of the explosions, lost some of its walls and windows.

Although it sustained little structural damage, Plywood Minnesota Co. about a half-mile from the blast lost much of its inventory because overhead sprinklers were activated by the shock, said Polk County Sheriff's Deputy Donald Lee. "It's a complete loss," he said.

Kevin Rosenow of Fulton took home more livestock than he brought to the Ogle County Fair in Oregon over the weekend. This little Jersey calf was born in the fair-ground barns. The calf's mother, a two-year-old cow, placed first in her class. Complete results are on Page 11. (Telegraph Photo)

Israeli Knesset studies agreement

JERUSALEM (AP) — The new Israeli-Egyptian agreement for a second Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert went before Israel's political parties today for its test.

The Knesset, Israel's parliament, was expected to take up the agreement Wednesday after the parties determined their positions. Statements from political leaders before conclusion of the negotiations indicated it would be approved by a narrow majority.

Israel and Egypt initiated the new agreement in Jerusalem and Alexandria on Monday after a 12-day diplomatic shuttle by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who left Egypt today for Saudi Arabia.

If the Knesset approves the accord, Israeli and Egyptian delegates will meet in Geneva to sign the accord, probably Thursday, Israeli officials said. They said they were correcting an earlier statement that the agreement would be signed in Israel and Egypt without a direct meeting.

Meanwhile, the Ford administration opened a campaign to win approval of the agreement by the U.S. Congress. This is needed because the pact provides for the stationing of some 200 American civilians at electronic surveillance stations between the two armies.

President Ford said if the agreement collapsed because Congress refused to authorize the American presence, the result would be "turmoil, increased tension and obviously a greater chance for war."

Although Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and some other influential members oppose the American involvement, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has said he expects congressional approval. Israel and Egypt initiated the new agreement in Jerusalem and Alexandria Monday after a 12-day diplomatic shuttle by Kissinger. If the Knesset approves it, the two governments are expected to sign it in Geneva several days later.

In addition to the Israeli troop withdrawal and return of the Abu Rudeis oilfields to Egypt, the pact commits the two longtime enemies to refrain from the "threat or use of force" against each other. Kissinger said he hoped "the implementation of this agreement and the documents that we have initialed today will be remembered as that point where peace at last began in the Middle East."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin admitted that there were risks for Israel in the accord. But he said these had to be taken to move toward peace, and the agreement could "open a new chapter in relations" with Egypt and in the Middle East.

"I think the agreement ... marks a turning point in the Arab-Israeli conflict," President Anwar Sadat said at the ceremony in Alexandria.

President Ford telephoned Kissinger and Rabin in Jerusalem and Sadat in Egypt.

"You can count on us to continue to stand with you," he told the Israeli leader. "You can rest assured that we will work with you to make sure that the agreement is carried out, not only in spirit but in letter."

"We will not tolerate stagnation or stalemate," Ford told the Egyptian president. "You have my assurance that we will keep the momentum going."

Ford congratulated Kissinger on a "great achievement, certainly one of the most historic of this decade if not the century."

Sadat came in for immediate criticism from two Arab countries.

In London, Syrian Ambassador Adnan Omran, whose government seeks the return of the Golan Heights from Israel, said the pact was "a waste of time" that did not bring peace any closer.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy pledged unlimited support to the Palestinians in regaining "usurped" land "despite any agreement that might come."

In the accord, Egypt and Israel acknowledge that "it is not a final peace agreement" and pledge to continue seeking peace in accordance with U.N. Security Council resolutions.

The terms call for Israel to vacate 1,900 square miles of desert, 1,520 of it to the U.N. Emergency Force for a new buffer zone between the two armies. This zone includes the Gidi and Mitla passes.

Nations must make own economic decisions: Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said today each nation must make its own decisions about its economy and that "no country can expect the actions of others to resolve its problems."

He addressed the annual meeting of the 127-nation International Monetary Fund and World Bank, where there has been widespread criticism that the United States has not done enough to help end world recession.

Ford said a sound U.S. economy is "the best lasting contribution this nation can make to other nations."

The President's speech came shortly after Treasury Secretary William E. Simon rejected a recommendation from the IMF that the United States do more to stimulate its economy. Simon said this country might already have done too much.

Simon flatly rejected a recommendation from Johannes Witteveen, director of the IMF, that the United States along with Germany and Japan undertake a greater effort to expand their economies and help end the world recession.

"We believe we have taken adequate means to reflate our economy on the fiscal side," Simon told a news conference.

Noting that the U.S. government will have a 1976 budget deficit of at least $60 billion, Simon said, "My concern is not that we have done enough; my concern is that we have done too much."

Witteveen had told an opening session of the meeting of the IMF and the World Bank on Monday that he thought nations with large economies should resort to additional tax cuts and federal spending to help the world economy.

Witteveen said the present rate of economic recovery in the world may be too slow and may leave most of the world mired in recession.

Although individual countries may feel they are doing enough, he said, they must look at the problem in a "global context" and take into account the economic difficulties of smaller nations that depend on the big powers.

Simon told reporters earlier he "certainly will not" recommend to the President that the United States take further actions to stimulate its economy.

Amboy voters okay referendum

AMBOY — Voters approved sewer bond issue by more than two-to-one vote at the referendum held Saturday.

A total of 205 votes were cast, with 139 "yes" votes and 66 "no." Officials were disappointed at the low voter turnout and credited it to the holiday weekend.

The referendum authorizes the city to issue up to $125,000 in general obligation bonds to finance the city's share of a $375,000 project to update the sewage disposal system to meet state and federal Environmental Protection Agency standards. The city has accepted a state grant of $285,000 to help finance the work.

The improvements include addition of aeration and chlorination equipment at the treatment facility and the separation of storm runoff from the sanitary system.

The bonds will be retired in 12 years and will have an approximate property tax rate of 16 1/2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Trenton, N.J., will run out of water

TRENTON, N.J. — (AP) — The city of Trenton, capital of New Jersey, and surrounding communities were expected to run out of water this afternoon.

Mayor Arthur Holland declared a state of emergency shortly before noon because of a broken pump in the city's water supply system.

An estimated 250,000 persons could be affected by the crisis, including about 100,000 in Trenton and the rest in the surrounding suburban communities of Ewing, Hamilton and Lawrence townships.

Holland ordered parochial schools, which opened today, to close, and city officials said the state and county offices may be shut down and that the staff at City Hall would be reduced to a skeleton crew.

Joseph Tuccillo, director of the city's public works, said nearby communities, including towns in Pennsylvania just across the Delaware River, had agreed to pump in about one-fifth of the 35 million gallons used by the city's water system each day.

Tuccillo said the city was calling for tank trucks to provide emergency water supplies to hospitals and other critical areas.

He also said it would be at least 48 hours before the broken pumps at the Trenton filtration plant adjacent to the Delaware River could be replaced.

The city's reservoir, which has a capacity of 110 million gallons, was about half depleted by Monday afternoon and almost entirely dry early today.

Car hits booth at Ogle Fair

OREGON — A rural Oregon motorist, apparently irate over not being allowed into the pedestrian entrance at the Ogle County Fairgrounds, was arrested Monday by sheriff's deputies after he drove his car into a manned booth.

Charged with reckless driving and leaving the scene of a property damage accident was Harvey E. Lewis, 41, Rt. 3, Oregon.

Neva McHenry told sheriff's deputies she told Lewis he could not drive through the pedestrian entrance with his auto. Lewis backed his auto from the entrance and then drove forward, striking a gate and nearly toppling the booth, police said. McHenry was not injured in the incident.

Lewis was taken to the Public Safety Building, where he was released on bond and scheduled to appear in court Friday.

$500,000 suit over fatal crash

OREGON — The death of a rural Oregon couple in May has resulted in the filing of a $500,000 damage suit here on behalf of a surviving daughter and Charles Ballard, administrator of the estate of William P. and Shirley A. Ballard.

The Ballards were killed in a head-on collision May 30 on Ill. 64, at Rock Road near Mt. Morris. Named as defendant in the suit is Arithia Cole, 46 Bellwood.

According to police reports, Cole was traveling west on the highway, passing a car, when her auto struck an eastbound car driven by Barbara J. Bettner, 22, Oregon. The Cole car careened into the eastbound lane, where it struck the Ballard car which was traveling east.

The first two counts of the suit seek collection of $200,000 each for the husband and wife; a third count seeks collection of $100,000 for damages in connection with injuries sustained by Barbara Ballard, a passenger in her parents car.

Police ticketed Cole for improper passing following their investigation of the accident.

Walker signs school bus bill

Rep. R. E. Brinkmeier (D-Freeport) today announced Gov. Walker has signed a bill of which he was chief sponsor which will permit adults to ride school buses to school activities.

Rep. Brinkmeier, who is a member of the School Problems Commission, pointed out that the ever increasing shortage of fuel with its accompanying increased cost makes this law extremely beneficial.

The bill permits school boards to transport adults, as well as students, to school activities. It provides that, if the school board elects to do this, they must charge a fee that will cover the additional costs such as drivers, fuel, appreciation, etc.

Reversal of dictum: Trade follows flag

By RONALD REAGAN

Turn around an old U.S. history course maxim that "trade follows the flag" and you have a hint of the government's strategy for normalizing relations with Cuba.

Last week the State Department announced that Latin American subsidiaries of U.S. companies may now obtain licenses to sell to Cuba "in countries where local law or policy favors trade with Cuba." In effect, this means indirect trade in those Western Hemisphere nations which have begun trading with Cuba since the recent lifting of the OAS (Organization of American States) blankets ban.

The State Department took pains to minimize any diplomatic significance in the new policy. Since it is only one step removed from resumption of direct trade, however, one doesn't need much imagination to believe that a modest amount of indirect trade will make the American people so accustomed to the idea that full trade won't be far off.

the matter, not wanting to stir passions among Cuban ex-patriots in the United States or risk a barrage of criticism from conservatives.

The absence of any talk about the need for a quid pro quo in order to normalize relations with Cuba suggests either that the State Department is afraid to insist on one or is keeping secret its plans to get one. Critics of detente in State's misguided tiptoe diplomacy over the Panama Canal are fearful it's the former.

There is plenty of ground for quid pro quo negotiating with Castro. One item should be an agreement by Cuba to deny landing and refueling rights to Soviet aircraft. This last spring, Soviet warplanes refueled in Cuba during the worldwide Soviet naval maneuver "Okean 75." They then proceeded to make simulated attack runs off our East Coast.

Other U.S. objectives in quid pro quo bargaining could include denials by Cuba of naval base rights to the Soviets; reaffirmation of U.S. naval base rights at Guantanamo; compensation to Americans for property seized by Castro; free movement between the two nations; written guarantees by Castro that he won't attempt to export his revolutionary tactics to other Western Hemisphere nations; and restoration of human rights and freedoms in Cuba, including religious freedom.

There hasn't been a single election in Castro's "paradise" since he came to power. That's a point worth talking about, too.

Recent conciliatory gestures by Castro, including the return of $2 million ransom money he had impounded in connection with a U.S. airliner hijacking, indicates that he is ready to talk turkey with the United States. Since we can accomplish both humanitarian and national objectives in the process, it's time for the Washington establishment to lift its Cuban dialogue above the level of that advertising slogan, "Since we're neighbors, let's be friends."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said of the move, "There is no advantage that we can see in a permanent antagonism between the United States and Cuba." Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who has been tub-thumping for normalization for months, said the U.S. sanctions against Cuban trade have been a "self-defeating mistake."

Others of the Washington establishment have been talking in the same vein.

What is missing is any official or even off-the-cuff declaration from our leaders that trade and diplomatic relations won't be resumed unless minimum U.S. requirements are met.

If such requirements have been established, no one is talking about them. In fact, the State Department keeps as low a profile as possible on

By DON OAKLEY

It's a good thing the United States won the war, one writer remarked on the just-passed 30th anniversary of the surrender of Japan in 1945. Otherwise the world might be flooded today with Hondas and Sonys.

This is clever. It also reveals a serious misreading of what the Second World War was all about, as well as constitutes a gross libel against the American nation.

The U.S. fought the war not to block the peaceful economic expansion of Japan, or of Germany, nor to protect American companies from competition, but to prevent the economic (and political) domination by these countries over their neighbors by virtue of military conquest.

If Hondas and Sonys, not to mention Volkswagens, are flooding the world today, it is because people want to buy these products and not because they are forced to. Far from suggesting that World War II was a useless waste, this fact demonstrates how successfully its immediate aim was achieved.

Another writer observed that despite the passage of 30 years since America dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, "the moral anguish of those actions torments us still."

Now no doubt some Americans are tormented with anguish over Hiroshima and Nagasaki but the vast majority of them when they think about the atomic bombings, which is seldom, have much the same feelings they have when they think about the fire bombings of Hamburg, Dresden and Tokyo, which is also seldom: These were terrible things, and possibly even unnecessary, as we are now told. But they were acts of war, committed in the heat and press of war, a war which our enemies had brought down upon themselves.

Clearer perspective on the atomic bomb

Fortunately, the Japanese and Germans seem to have a clearer perspective on World War II than some Americans do. Both nations have accepted their responsibilities for starting the war, as well as the just consequences of having lost it. For Germany, this is totally different from the situation in the 1920s and 1930s, when bitterness over the harsh Versailles treaty helped pave the way for the rise of Hitler.

One traveler to Japan a few years ago reported the perplexity of Japanese scientists, government officials and others when told about the guilt Americans feel for having used the Bomb against them. The Japanese would have done the same thing had positions been reversed, they said.

"Much unreasonable suffering, to the people of Japan as well as to the Americans and other peoples of the world," was caused by Japan's senseless insistence on fighting for more than a year after it became obvious it had no hope of victory, says Masatake Okumiya, a retired general of Japan's Air Self Defense Force.

The ignorance of the people about the true conditions of the war, together with historical factors—such as the expectation of a "miracle" like the divine wind (kamikaze) that saved Japan from a Mongol invasion in the 13th century—prolonged the conflict, he writes in PHP magazine, published by PHP (Peace, Happiness, Prosperity) Institute, founded in 1946 by Japanese electronics pioneer and philanthropist Konosuke Matsushita.

Today there are 40 million more Japanese than there were at the end of World War II. Almost totally dependent upon foreign countries for raw materials and energy, the Japanese realize that they need the friendship, goodwill and cooperation of people all over the world.

"There is no other way for Japan," says Okumiya. "For if there is any lesson we have learned from our experience, it is that we must not make war again."

When a Japanese military man, speaking for a nation that has been transformed in 30 years from marauder to model citizen of the world community, can renounce the uses of war, no American need feel shame or guilt for the things that were done in war to make that possible.

REFLECTIONS—Pollen is the nemesis of hay-fever sufferers which afflicts them with runny noses and headaches in late summer and early fall.

As the pollen count soars, these unhappy victims seek some more or less effective remedies and pray for an early frost.

It will not provide any surcease for those whose nasal passages become inflamed by the sneeze-inducing airborne maze of pollen to know scientists have discovered these minute grains are what they call "an index to the book of life."

Researchers began to study pollen only about eight years ago, so there is much more to be learned about them, but during the less-than-a-decade study of the tiny grains, scientists are convinced man's knowledge can be greatly expanded by the secrets which will be revealed by further exploration of pollen.

The objective of the scientific research and the plague to hay fever sufferers, pollen, is the male productive cell of plants.

This may motivate feminists of the women's rights movement to pounce upon this fact as a demonstration from the world of botany that the male is the real source of not only subjecting females to a second-class status but also for some of the woes endured by the general population.

Back to more scientific pursuits, since pollen is enclosed by a hard outer shell it has been preserved for millions of years in oxygen-deficient environments, such as bogs and swamps. Research has found pollen samples more than 300 million years old.

In many instances, it has been possible to identify the exact type of plant that produced the pollen and has provided scientists with the data needed to chart the kind of plants that grew in prehistoric times, many of which are now extinct.

It is known plants change with climate and preserved pollen has provided researchers with the most complete and accurate record of the world's climatic history which they have yet discovered.

Armed with pollen-deduced information, scientists recently concluded the world's climate goes through cycles and that only five per cent of the time of its existence has the earth been as warm as it is today.

Indications are the globe has just passed a peak of a warm period and is headed into another long cold phase in its weather cycle.

A by-product of using pollen is to identify certain types of prehistoric plants and gives an assist to locating fuel deposits, such as coal and oil.

One researcher, Dr. Richard Baker, a geologist at the University of Iowa, cites the fact pollen research has helped solve a murder in Vienna, Austria. He reveals mud taken from the shoes of a suspect contained a combination of pollen found only at one nearby location and it was there that the murder victim's body was discovered.

Discounting somewhat the claims of enthusiastic exaggerations about the potential of pollen research, it seems reasonable to suggest this is a breakthrough in the study of the past which is always a prologue to the future.

The ecology of nature is wondrous to behold when we reflect on the ingenuity of its system of recording its past.

Many jobless as recession wanes

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

President Ford is conliding to White House insiders that at least Congress's immense red-ink overspending can help the unemployment. But, politically, it's as unpromising as shooting the Colorado River rapids in a patched canoe.

It's almost sure to fail.

Both Congress and the President alike seem destined to campaign for the 1976 elections while unemployment remains to hit them hard in the eye.

Unemployment statistics are full of what Winston Churchill, the old titan, called "those damn dots" and, actually, even today we have about twice as many people working at two jobs (moonlighting) as the total number of people not working and listed as jobless. But Congress and President Ford both face a grim fundamental:

Joblessness normally goes up or remains unacceptably high, not down, after the turn in a recession.

For example, the short but brutal 1960-61 recession hit bottom in February, 1961. Unemployment was higher afterward than during the recession. In fact, you have to go all the way back to the 1943 recession—32 years ago—and look at 11 distinct recoveries to find a recession bottom and a high in joblessness at the same time.

A combination of things happen to unemployment after the recession's bottom—all protracting the joblessness.

Businesses usually continue to cut a whole variety of costs long after the recession's bottom. As this column has said in regard to government spending, or spending by an enterprise, savings have a domino effect; you save here because you have saved there, because you have saved somewhere else.

Next, many industries can increase their low production for an amazingly long time without hiring additional help that come off the jobless rolls. Automobiles, textiles and furniture are among the industries counted upon most heavily to reduce the unemployment. But I have talked with their executives in each one.

They're brave, but their night-mare lockers are overloaded. Executives in the hard-hit automobile industry tell me that they cannot see how their hourly employees this year can equal those of last year.

Textiles executives, having experienced the worst period since the horrible Depression of the 30s, look for an increase in sales. But they anticipate that less than half the sales increase will show up in textile employment. That's likewise my finding among furniture executives.

With so many other industries also operating at such a low percentage of their capacity, reemployment can be a long process.

On top of this, the record shows that there is a true gain in productivity per man hour in recessions. One reason a dollar won't do as much for people is because people won't do as much for a dollar—but that is reversed in a recession.

In addition, many companies accumulate a good deal of fat in boom times. Enterprises, like the government, waste here, because they have wasted there, because they have wasted somewhere else. It's the domino effect all over again.

The fat they cut in overhead and marginal personnel stays cut a long time. To cite a case, one large company I have in mind had 48 public relations people. Today it has seven.

Surprisingly enough, business failures also contribute to the joblessness. Actually, some recoveries have brought increases in business failures. The recession grinds down many businesses, and, facing collapse, they cannot live through the slowness of the pickup.

There seems widespread agreement that the recession has hit bottom and we've turned up. But this is usually the province of economists looking backward with 20-20 vision, well after the event. They blow smoke from the corners of their mouths like Indians sending up smoke signs and insist a recession has made it's bottom.

But in the sad area of unemployment, oh, no, the recession's bottom simply does not come like a dove from Noah's Ark to signal that all is over.

Eventually, of course, unemployment will decline as the recovery proceeds. But in the politically consequential matter of joblessness, both President Ford and Congress alike are behind the eight ball in the 1976 elections.

Voice of the people

Again we are beset by strikes and boycotts nationwide. In most cases it appears that the one side has very legitimate grievances, while, on the employer's side there are also equally legitimate opposition to those grievances. In such situations, it is very difficult to be completely objective, since many times, various subjects are being dealt with, some of which invariably strike an emotional chord. Probably the best approach is to analyze the situation, item by item.

Of great concern to most people, I think, is the item of finances. This seems to be the basis of most all other grievances which come up.

In view of our present economic situation, I wonder how many people have considered the fact that this inflationary spiral will, most assuredly, stop somewhere. More than 25 years ago John T. Flynn, in his book "The Road Ahead," pointed out the route by which England was led into accepting Socialism. His description then is an apt description of our present situation to this date. As England accepted, more and more, the ravages of inflation, they found that soon the government was taking over the operation of many of the major services because private enterprise simply could not stand the gaff and were literally forced out of business, becoming virtual "wards of the State."

Today, it seems to me, we are traveling the same path, with the very same end in view. However, I firmly believe this trend can be reversed. It won't be easy. As President Ford has suggested several times, belt tightening must be done; individual sacrifices will have to be made, and sacrifices are never easy. Even now we see the trend of reversal beginning to shape up, with many employers becoming more adamant to the granting of wage and salary increases. It is entirely possible that they simply cannot survive the financial pressure without facing the risk of bankruptcy.

It occurs to me, and many others agree, that possibly a period of re-adjustment, embracing individual austerity could be the tough solution to this apparently insoluble situation. The picture isn't pretty, especially to a citizenry acclimated to a large degree of affluence. However, if Americans still possess those traditional virtues of frugality and fortitude, there is no doubt in my mind but that we can, and will, weather well such a period, should we choose to go that way.

Please note that I say CHOOSE to individually accept, on a united basis, such a period of austerity. There is a very definite distinction between free choice and forcible acceptance. History shows that when a people procrastinate until austerity is theirs by planned design being forced upon them, those people are truly divested of all their freedoms, only to be replaced by Socialism (Communism). Is this to be our lot?

I suggest that it is high time we Americans decide to dispel our apathy and resolve that "keeping up with the Joneses" is pure folly.

Shall we now take the stand to so simplify our lives that we can live within the concept of a tight and somewhat chaotic economy, with the goal a retention of our most basic freedoms, and, eventually, a solid economy, by our own choice, or continue gayly on our present course and allow our socialistic planners to maneuver us into the inescapable position too many other countries have experienced, in which all, and I do mean ALL, is lost to us, thanks to our apathy and greed, and the aggressiveness of our Socialist "benefactors"? Which sacrifice will YOU choose?

Pastures should be renovated now

Right now is the best time for pasture renovation in Southern Illinois, says D. A. Miller, University of Illinois professor of plant breeding and genetics. Graze or remove most of the existing grass before renovating for more effective tillage, says Miller. Prepare the seedbed by repeated disking to destroy existing sod. Disking is better than plowing for late summer renovation because disking leaves root and stubble trash near the surface to protect against erosion and aid in seeding emergence, Miller says. Herbicides or contact killers may be used alone or in combination with sod tillage. For best results, disturb at least 40 to 60 per cent of the soil to establish covers and 80 to 100 per cent for alfalfa, birdsfoot trefoil, and crownvetch, Miller says.

Livestock show

Plans call for a strong livestock and horse program at the 1975 National Dairy Cattle Congress which will be held Sept. 20-28 in Waterloo, Iowa. The competitive livestock show will be in two different sections with dairy and sheep on the grounds the first five days of the show and beef and swine the remainder.

Horses will be divided in different divisions also with breeds represented to include saddle horses, hackney ponies, Tennessee Walking horses, miniature mules, draft horses, Morgans, Arabians, draft ponies, quarter horses, POAs and Appaloosas.

Judges for this year's competitive livestock show are among the top in the nation and include: OPEN DAIRY—David Dickson, Madison, Wis. (Ayrshire and Guernseys); John McKittrick, Columbus, Ohio (Brown Swiss and Holstein); Fred Foreman, Ames, Iowa (Jerseys and milking Shorthorns). YOUTH DAIRY—Craig Lang, Brooklyn, Iowa (Ayrshires and Guernseys); Dennis Paaske, Long Grove, Iowa (Brown Swiss and milking Shorthorns); John Hager, Waterloo (Holsteins); Larry Madren, Ames, Iowa (Jerseys). BEEF CATTLE—Dr. Gary Minish, Blackburg, Va. (Charolais, Herefords and steers); Dr. Bill Able, Manhattan, Kan. (Angus and Shorthorns). SWINE—Francis Callahan, Milford, Ill. BREEDING SHEEP and MARKET LAMBS—Jim Meno, Hudson, Iowa. HORSES—Howard Roberts, Clinton, Mo. (saddle horses and ponies); Doug Palmer, Schanberg, Ont. (draft horses); Bob Danits, Abilene, Tex. (Appaloosas and POAs); James Kiser, Ames, Iowa (Morgans and Arabians); Ken Jackson, Galatia, Ill. (quarter horses and draft ponies); Harlan Larson, Goldfield, Iowa (mules).

Livestock, Ag exposition set

The Board of Directors of the 1975 International Live Stock and Agricultural Exposition has announced plans for its all-new "Live Stock Expo '75" this fall which will blend the traditional aspects of the world-famous show with a strong outlook to the future, said Board Chairman Patrick L. O'Malley.

The 76th annual live stock show will open on its traditional Thanksgiving Day Nov. 27, and will run through Dec. 2, at the International Amphitheatre, 4380 S. Halsted St., Chicago.

"New features of 'Live Stock Expo '75' are designed to blend the urban and rural aspects of the show," said O'Malley, "as well as to provide Chicagoans and out-of-state holiday visitors with a special fun-filled family activity."

Among these exciting new attractions to the show are the daily performances of the International Horse Show, presenting 450 magnificent horses in the ultimate test of saddle horse competition; a daily program of top name country-western and other entertainment, including Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass, Mel Tillis, Tommy Overstreet & the Nashville Express, the Judy Lynn Show, and the entire Fred Waring Pennsylvanians Show.

The newest feature attraction of the exposition for young people is the "Hayloft Gallery" which, for the duration of the show, will house student art drawn from public and non-public schools throughout the state of Illinois.

As part of the show's "state fair in the city" atmosphere, there will be Barbershop Quartets and Sweet Adelines choruses, an antique car show, and square dancers to provide continuous lively and colorful entertainment.

Another new feature of "Live Stock Expo '75" is the 50,000 square foot Bicentennial Exhibit of 200 years of American agricultural heritage, with displays of the arts and crafts of the Smokies and the Ozarks, displays of antique tools, prairie kitchen utensils, antique farm equipment from museums across the country, and more than 600 varieties of barbed wire used to "tame the West."

The Big Farmer Showcase of New Farm Products, the latest in farming technology and concepts and exhibits of new farm machinery, will also be part of the 76th annual Live Stock Show.

O'Malley pointed out that Chicago's Consular Corps and many ethnic groups will get special recognition this year through "Fete Internationale," which will feature agricultural exhibits from around the world.

Controlling silo fires

By STANLEY R. EDEN
Ogle Co. Extension Adviser

Spontaneous combustion can occur in silage stored at the normal range of 30- to 50 per cent moisture if enough oxygen is present, says Stan Eden, Ogle County Extension Adviser. And special techniques are required to fight spontaneous combustion fires in oxygen-free silage or grain storage structures, he adds.

Usually the oxygen level is too limited to permit active flaming in silo fires, says Eden. But smoldering or partial combustion can occur when filler doors are left open for long periods of time with the structure less than one-third full.

The fire fighting job is best left to experts, he continues. But there are some step-by-step procedures to follow if spontaneous combustion occurs:

—Close the unloader door and all other openings in the bottom of the structure.

—Put the covers on roof access hatches, but don't dog them down. If excessive gas pressure builds up, the covers can then be lifted to relieve pressure. Get off the roof as quickly as possible.

—Wait at least 24 hours.

—Remove the cap from the drainpipe at the lower access opening and introduce carbon dioxide into the unloader cavity. It takes about 500 pounds of carbon dioxide at normal temperature and pressure to occupy the volume in one ring of an empty 20-foot-diameter structure.

—Leave the structure closed as completely as possible, even if silo walls become hot enough to melt the sealer or force it out of joints. Don't spray water on the structure. Water may damage hot, glass-coated sheets and will not effectively cool the contents of the structure.

—Open the unloader door and insect the feed when walls are cool and no smoke has issued from the breather valve for several days. If it is still too hot to handle, close the structure again. If the material is not too hot, dog down the roof hatch covers and resume normal feeding operations.

—Test for pressure and vacuum when the structure is completely empty; reseal if required and make any other necessary repairs.

Germ dangers on Mississippi coast

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — People who go swimming in the germ-laden waves off Mississippi's resort beach have got to be uninformed tourists or reckless optimists.

The languid surf along 26 miles of manmade beach between Biloxi and Gulfport teems with fecal coliform from sewage flowing into the Gulf of Mexico.

Mere mention of it is enough to give the tourist industry here heartburn and hiccups. But despite its ugly image, pollution apparently hasn't created other complications of health.

"A couple mouthfuls might upset your stomach but I never heard of anybody getting sick from it," said Dr. Louis Jobe, Harrison County Health Officer. "That's a strange thing — maybe we're lucky."

"It depends on the individual, how much is swallowed or gets in the eyes," he added. "Hepatitis is a remote possibility. That highway beside the beach is a lot more dangerous."

Pollution of the shallows along the beach has been building up for years, spurred by a surge in coast population that has not been matched by development of sewage facilities.

Nobody thought much about it before the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission—AWPC—began making laboratory tests of water along the coast three years back.

The coliform count from sewage sometimes soared over 24,000 parts per 100 milliliters — the cutoff point in the AWPC test — far above the allowable maximum of 200 parts per 100 milliliters set for recreational waters. A milliliter is about a tenth of a quart.

In Jackson, Charles Chisholm, head of the AWPC, said fecal coliform does not necessarily cause illness but is a true indicator of pollution and water exceeding the coliform standard is not suitable for swimming due to health hazards.

Strangers don't always discover these facts. Tourists are a major cash crop for hotels and motels along four-lane U.S. 90, where it parallels the beach, and officials feel that signs warning against swimming would scare them away.

The road along the beach is lined with motels, restaurants and other tourist facilities.

A belated scramble to install good sewerage along the coast is under way. Waters estimated it may take 10 years and up to $150 million to complete.

Consumer should rely on own economic data

NEW YORK (AP) — The consumer has good reason to rely on his own observations about the economy instead of listening to the politically tainted pronouncements of some government officials.

In recent weeks the views out of Washington have sometimes been a bit contradictory, as if whoever was supposed to be orchestrating the administration view was off on vacation.

Or probably it is because some officials have doubts about the long proclaimed emergence from recession, or doubts at least regarding the strength of the recovery that has been so widely forecast.

When jobless figures for July showed a drop from those of June the administration was quick to point out that this was further evidence that its policy was working. Now it has a different interpretation.

Reporting on the views of

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Ron Nessen said those July figures might have overstated things, that they might have been a "statistical quirk."

Americans shouldn't be surprised, the President's press secretary seemed to suggest, if the August jobless rate rose above July's 8.4 per cent level. Americans might not be surprised about a rise, but they are becoming dismayed by the changing views.

The government relies on its index of leading indicators to peer into the future, and it suggests that the public rely on it also. That index rose in July for the fifth straight month, indicating economic recovery.

However, Rogers C.B. Morton, the commerce secretary, seems to have said that we shouldn't rely too heavily on that official government index. "We cannot expect that every month will show such a dramatic increase," he said.

Who and what do you believe — the administration's semi-official line that the economy is recovering? Or the view of Asst. Treasury Secretary Sidney Jones that the economy over the next few months could be turbulent?

Is Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz correct in saying that the sale of grains to the Soviets will raise domestic food prices 1.5 per cent? Or is Arthur F. Burns, Federal Reserve chairman, who expects a rise of at least 2 per cent?

What is the public supposed to think when Housing Secretary Carla Hills tells the Congressional Joint Economic Committee that in the seriously depressed housing industry "all sectors seem to be rebounding."

The rebound that Mrs. Hills alluded to remained undiscovered by industry officials. Builders were as mystified as they were surprised by her statement.

Consumers are forced by this confusing news to make their own assessments.

Artist puts together Biblical family tree

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it a timetable? An illustration of some intricate vascular or nervous system? A complex electrical wiring plan? A maze? No, it's a family tree. It traces the long, labyrinthine blood lines of the Bible.

An Oklahoma City artist, real estate dealer and Bible class teacher, puzzled by all those ancestors, "begats" and descendants recited profusely in the Scriptures, has put them all together in one, interstitched genealogical chart.

"It was like putting together some enormous jigsaw puzzle," says Mary Lou Farris. "But the parts fit, once you find where they belong."

The assembled pedigrees, printed on a big, 2-by-3-foot chart in a half-dozen colors, traces human descent through thousands of years of ancient Biblical origins, branches and connections from Adam and Eve to Jesus.

Altogether, the chart contains about 1,100 names, including both minor and major figures in the successive unfolding of the generations.

"The purpose is to enable people to see the whole picture instead of in just bits and pieces," Mrs. Farris said in a telephone interview. "It's to help them understand the Bible. You can't fully follow the action without knowing who the actors are."

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— Would you please tell me the dangers of using a laxative every night? My husband, who is 28 years old and in good health, has made this a steady habit for the past year.

DEAR READER— It usually leads to a spastic colon problem. The chemical laxatives irritate the small intestine and cause it to be overactive. This propels undigested food into the colon. The colon is prematurely emptied, and its normal rhythmic contractions are interfered with.

Because the colon is empty it often takes two or three days for a person to get back to a regular schedule when he stops taking laxatives.

The bulk expander laxatives are not harmful in the same way continued use of chemical laxatives can be. Nevertheless, the best approach to proper bowel function is to eat a proper diet, including adequate amounts of cereal bulk and fresh, leafy vegetables, develop good bowel habits by training, and avoid the laxative and enema habit. Your husband can save himself a lot of grief by making such a change now. Spastic colon problems are believed to lead to such conditions as diverticulosis, the pockets of the colon so common in later years.

DEAR DR. LAMB— Is there any advantage to drinking boiled water? I know many people do and so I started. I've been doing so for a while now, but is it healthier or is there really no reason for drinking boiled water? What changes occur in water when it is boiled?

DEAR READER— Boiling water kills the organisms that might be in the water. The people in many parts of the world survive their contaminated water by boiling it for tea or other beverages.

Boiling will not eliminate the chemicals in the water, so the only help you get is eliminating infectious organisms. You don't need to do this to water that has been treated properly chemically. The problem then is are there too many of the wrong chemicals in the tap water, and boiling won't solve that. In this case boiling won't do any good or harm.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I read your column, and you stated most people get entirely too much salt, or far more than the body needs.

Since I have had both of my adrenal glands removed I have been told by my doctor to use excessive amounts of salt, in cooking and then adding table salt, even put a little in my drinking water. What is the reason for it?

DEAR READER— You are not "most people." You are a rare individual without adrenal glands. The adrenal glands produce a hormone that enables the body to retain normal amounts of salt. The hormones act on the kidneys to control the salt elimination.

People with certain types of adrenal insufficiency or those who have had the glands removed lose too much salt in the urine and need extra salt. One clue to adrenal insufficiency is an excess desire for salt, combined with other symptoms. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-656: Amy G., aged 20, is a college coed here in Chicago.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am taking a course in political science."

"And our professor has asked us to poll at least 20 people apiece regarding their preference for presidential candidates next year."

"Well, I interviewed voters ranging from the age of 20 on up to 81."

"And what surprised me was the fact three elderly ladies said they'd prefer Spiro Agnew!"

"When I protested that he had been guilty of improper behavior while in office, they brushed that aside, saying it wasn't as bad as our own Judge Kerner's perjury and cash pay-offs."

"Several other classmates also met people who preferred Spiro Agnew."

"So how do you explain his charisma with voters?"

Spiro and Kojak

Many Americans of both sexes still hold Spiro Agnew in high esteem. Why?

Because he and Kojak, of TV fame, exude a charisma based on their masculine assurance.

They don't mince words or pussyfoot or act like the political chameleon who alters his tune to fit each changing audience.

Basically, voters like a candidate who exudes assurance and offers a positive impression that he can handle all problems that may arise.

Wishy-washy candidates are at the opposite end of the spectrum from men like Spiro Agnew or Kojak or Muhammad Ali et al.

For Americans prefer sluggers to deft boxers.

Thus, Jack Dempsey won the crowd though he lost the heavy-weight fight to dancing Tunney in their Chicago battle.

Harry Truman also beat dapper Thomas Dewey in their presidential contest.

For Dewey felt he had the victory won, so he began to affect a neutral, conciliatory role in trying to cement democratic and republican followers.

Meanwhile, Truman kept slugging away, often with verba, haymakers that Dewey could easily have demolished.

But Dewey took a paternal attitude and side-stepped Truman's slugging.

Even the old-time democratic political leaders had conceded Dewey's victory.

So they were also astounded the next day when it was finally shown that slugger Truman had upset the apple cart.

Americans thus like a fighter and doubly so if he is depicted as the underdog, with little chance of winning.

Inherent in the usual crowd is thus an identification of themselves with the underdog.

Why?

Because, for 15 years in our childhood, we have been weaker and inferior to those big adult parents and teachers who have bossed us around.

Thus, even after we attain adulthood and may actually tower several inches above those former giant parents and teachers, we still retain that brainwashed childhood attitude of the underdog.

In the typical contest, whether boxing or political, the average American subconsciously roots for the underdog, hoping for a dramatic surprise upset.

Cox - Meyer wed

RANTOUL—Miss Peggy Ann Cox became the wife of Gary Lynn Meyer in a recent evening ceremony at Chanute Air Force Base chapel. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foss, Polo, and Mrs. Addie Meyer, Polo, and the late Elwood Meyer.

The Rev. Robert T. Deming, United Presbyterian chaplain at Chanute, conducted the nuptial service by candlelight. Mrs. Cheryl Weber, Polo, was organist and vocalist.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore a floor-length gown of satin organza featuring a bodice edged with organza and a V yoke of Venice lace with blue ribbon. A pleated ruffle accented her high neckline and bishop sleeves. Her A-line skirt swept into a brush train with pleated border and a mantilla held her cathedral-length veil. She carried a cascade of soft-blue daisies and white Forever Yours roses.

Mrs. Leon R. Meyer, Polo, was matron of honor. She was attired in a turquoise flocked voile gown over taffeta, fashioned with a ruffled scoop neckline, short puffed sleeves and an empire waistline encircled with grosgrain ribbon. Her dirndl skirt had a deep flounce and her matching straw hat was encircled with Venice lace.

Leon Ray Meyer, Polo, was best man. Ushers were Airmen Clayton Dennis Daugherty and Wayne Miller, both of Chanute Air Force Base.

A reception followed the ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Quimby. Miss Dianna Cox, Polo, presided at the gift table along with Mrs. Richard Walsh, Chanute AFB. Mrs. Cheryl Weber, Polo, served coffee and punch. Cake was served by Mrs. William Sanders.

Following their honeymoon to Lake Kickapoo, the newlyweds will be stationed at Scott Air Force Base, Belleville.

Mrs. Meyer is a 1974 graduate of Polo Community High School and attended the Whiteside Area Vocational School.

Dentists don't cash in on old gold crowns

Dear Ann Landers: When "No Goldigger" complained that dental patients should be given their old gold crowns and inlays you beamed, "Your suggestion is worth its weight in gold."

As Secretary to the Council on Dental Materials and Devices, may I tell you a better answer would have been, "Your suggestion is worth its weight in copper, palladium, zinc, nickel and a number of other elements that may be mixed with the gold."

Although expensive when purchased, the amount of gold in any single restoration has a negligible resale value. A patient would have to seek out a smelting company and pay for separating the various elements through refining — if the company would accept such a small order.

Ever dentists don't cash in gold crowns and inlays until they have saved up a good number. If, however, a patient wants the old stuff for a souvenir, all he need do is ask. —J. W. S. Ph.D.

Dear J.W.S.: Thanks for wising me up. I'm afraid "No Goldigger" made some members of the dental profession look a little kinky, and I should not have allowed her to get away with it.

I checked with my own dentist, Dr. Jordan Block, and he said you are absolutely right. So — two extractions with no novocaine for Yours Truly.

Here's another letter from an irate dentist who taped a tooth with a large gold crown to his letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Shame on you for lending credence to an uninvestigated charge against a dentist by a woman who said she had worked for him for eight years. If I am any judge of people, she didn't work for him, she merely collected her salary.

I herewith enclose an extracted tooth — complete with gold crown. I offered it to the owner who didn't want it, so it came to rest in my scrap gold box, which I cash in every 12 years. Please take it to your own assayer, and then, having determined the "tremendous value," donate the proceeds to a worthy charity. — Clayton K. Gross, D.M.D., Portland, Oregon.

Dear Doc: If it's all the same to you, I don't think I'll take the tooth anyway. I'd rather keep it on my desk — as a reminder to check with an authority when the subject is out of my bailiwick.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband works for a well-known national chain. For the third time in 11 years he has told me, "We're moving."

I always pack the dishes with tears streaming down my face. It means disrupting our child's schooling and making new friends, which isn't easy.

I've hated every city we've ever lived in and the place we live in now is the worst. Even though each move has been a promotion, I'd rather have less money and be near family. What's your opinion? — Gypsy.

Dear G.: I say you should go where the grapes grow. If your husband's job requires you to move — then do it without complaining.

Most people who hate the city they live in didn't like the city they came from — and the next one is no better.

The trouble is YOU, dear, and you take yourself wherever you go.

Get some counseling and find out why you are so bitter and hostile. It's bound to help in ways you never thought possible.

Knitters can make afghan with the look of crochet. This diamond-patterned afghan adds warm touch to any room.

Afghan brightens decor

By JUDY LOVE
Afghans are a natural for today's easy living. They add a warm touch to any room and can pack up and go anywhere to ward off the evening chill. Afghans also tell your friends what a talented needleworker you are.

Although most afghans are done in crochet, we've found one for knitters that gives the light, airy look that crochet is famous for.

It's at home in a child's room, tossed across the sofa in a den, or as a bedspread in the most elegant master bedroom. Using a natural or earth-toned yarn, it's an accent piece for a contemporary wood and brick environment. Choose a muted blue, rose or green shade to go with more traditional surroundings.

You'll need a soft, durable yarn like Bernat's Berella 4 for an afghan that will give you many years of service and beauty. We used 9 balls of 4-ounce yarn, 1 pair of No. 8 straight knitting needles, and a size E (3.5mm) crochet hook. Finished size is about 42x62 inches, not including fringe. The gauge is 9 stitches to 2 inches.

Any knitter who has mastered the basic stitches can create this heirloom-to-be in record time.

Dear Judy Love: I've just finished knitting a sweater in the stockinette stitch and would like to monogram it. Can you tell me the best way of doing this? — J. D.; Dallas, Tex.

Dear J. D.: Monogramming is easy and fun to do on the stitch you knitted your sweater in. It is called a duplicate stitch and it is really a simple embroidery stitch. It is also good to use as a mending stitch as it actually mimics the natural outline of a knit stitch. The following method makes a very nice monogram. Using a tapestry needle with contrasting color yarn, bring the needle up from the wrong side through the center of the stitch. Starting at the lower edge or bottom of design, bring needle through, wrapping around the base of the V. Following V formed in knit base, make duplicate stitch by going from right to left behind the two strands of the same stitch and drawing yarn through. Do not pull too taut as you don't want to make a pucker. Return needle and yarn down through center point of same stitch (or where you started) and draw yarn through to wrong side, thus completing duplicate stitch. Repeat this procedure for desired monogram or design.

Ace causes serious blockage

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South has opened a 15-point notrump, either because he likes to live dangerously or because he counts an extra point for the fifth club.

The final contract is a good one. It will make against a 4-3 spade break if the club finesse works or if a spade isn't opened. However, a spade is opened. South looks at dummy's 11 points plus 10-spot and wonders how he will explain failure if the game does not make.

He looks at the five of spades and makes the pessimistic decision that it is fourth best of five. Is there anything he can do to make the hand if it is fourth of five and the club finesse is wrong?

There is a slight extra chance. If East holds two spade honors South can justify his 15-point notrump and make his partner happy instead of mad.

South hops up with dummy's ace of spades. East drops an honor and business has picked up. South loses the club finesse but no harm has been done. The spade suit has blocked itself. 2 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

A national model?

Forty per cent of all parents who send their children to public schools, according to a nationwide survey, are dissatisfied with the quality of education their children are receiving.

Yet all of the innovative, alternative schools — which get flashy attention in the magazines or are featured on TV — wind up shutting their doors after a few "creative" years.

The reason alternative schools fail is because they usually serve only one kind of student: the bored-but-gifted, the dropout, the slow learner, the non-self-starter, etc.

Well, a few years ago, Quincy, Illinois, which has always prided itself in the attention it gave to quality education, found that its high school students were starting to passively resist school. No major upheavals — just skipping classes, ignoring rules, working at a lower level of ability. Teachers too felt something amiss, their jobs less rewarding, less enjoyable.

Working within the community, as well as with the outside expertise of Mario Fantini, Dean of the School of Education, State University of New York at New Paltz, Quincy school administrators, teachers and, yes, students devised a program called "Education By Choice."

Here's the way the new high school, built at a cost of $8 million works: a student may choose from among seven separate and distinct schools, with the approval of his or her parents. But all of the schools are located under the same roof!

These are the schools: Traditional: Affectionately known as "Hickory Stick High," the Traditional school is exactly that — students attend class or supervised study hall for six, 55-minute class periods. There is homework, term papers and grades and students are not allowed to wander the halls during class periods.

P.I.E. (Project to Individualize Education): The most progressive "school", and recipient of $748,080 in Title III Federal funds, this unorthodox, open classroom setting allows students to take the courses they want, when they want, with a very close student-teacher-advisor relationship. Decision-making rests with the kids; teachers give frequent written evaluations.

Flexible: A compromise between Traditional and P.I.E., students attend class only four days a week and have one day, "Flex Day," where the student is allowed to spend the entire day doing what he or she wants — studying one subject, making up incomplete work, working in the community on a special project.

Fine Arts: The emphasis here is on the more than 30 courses in visual arts, music, theater, radio-TV and dance. There is a brand new, 600-seat theater, as well as a symphony orchestra, chamber music and choral group to choose from.

Work-Study: For the potential high school dropout, courses are designed for individual needs of the student. Teachers make regular visits to the home to improve what is often the student's poor self-image. It is not unusual for a student to improve his work to the point where he then transfers to another "school."

Special Education: Instead of shuffling off low (50 to 80) I.Q. students to another place, Quincy educators wisely and humanely decided that "special" students would benefit from contact with other students (and vice versa). There students are taught vocations and living skills they can master, and are aided by patient teachers in gaining social maturity.

There are some problems at Quincy II: teachers estimate that about 25 per cent of the students enrolled in the permissive P.I.E. program are there for the wrong reasons; a totally inadequate sex education program and no mandatory preparation for parenthood program.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Let's Talk About Decorating

By GLADYS WOLBER

Caring for Drapes
and Upholstery

The upholstery on your furniture should be cleaned at least once every year to prevent permanent soiling. Use one of the wet cleaning preparations designed for upholstery use. I recommend sending your draperies out to a reputable dry cleaning establishment once every year. Most glass curtains can be laundered by hand and often require little or no ironing.

In-between cleanings, be sure to periodically shake dust and loose dirt from your drapes and upholstery. Clean off spots promptly when they occur. Before you buy, check to see if the fabric has been pre-treated with one of the new stain repellents. Since dirt and fluids won't sink into these surfaces, they mean long-wear and continued attractiveness for your fabric and less work for you.

If your furniture is vinyl covered, as it is in so many of today's lovely Contemporary homes, your cleaning task will be very simple. A damp sponge and warm water is all that's usually required. Your vinyl covered furniture is colorfast too — it won't even fade under the sun's bright rays. Like to bring a bright new look to your home? Visit Dunbar's Decorator Rooms. Check for cancer

'Moving stadium' in Hawaii is working

HONOLULU (AP)—Sports writers called it "the monster" and "the great white elephant." Some said it would never work.

The architect was forced to post a $1-million performance bond against the chance that it wouldn't work.

But after delays, tests, heavy criticism and even a squabble over what to name it, the unique 50,000-seat Aloha Stadium is working.

The inaugural game will be played Sept. 13—a football game between the University of Hawaii and Texas A&I.

The steel-frame stadium uses an "Air-film" system to move parts of the grandstands into the best position for watching either football or baseball.

Aloha Stadium "will set a new standard for sports stadiums the world over," says Hawaii Controller Hideo Murakami, who supervised the state project.

Two sections of grandstand remain stationary. Four others—each as tall as a 14-story building, weighing 14 million pounds and containing about 2,500 seats—move with the changing sports seasons. The movable stands place spectators close to the sidelines for football and arched around the infield and outfield for baseball. The state financed the project to provide a new home for the World Football League Hawaiians, the Pacific Coast League

Hawaii Islanders baseball team and local high school and college teams. The total cost isn't known yet, but the figuring starts at $27 million.

The grandstands can be moved in about 25 minutes.

Viet doctor solves problem for Illinois town

MILLSTADT, Ill. (AP)—Dr. Trinh Ba Tuong needed a home. And this German-American community of 2,300 had searched five years for a physician.

Now, thanks to the efforts of a local Lutheran church, the Millstadt Commercial Club, and of course two uncles named Sam and Ho, they're solving one another's problems.

Trinh, 31, his wife Bui Thi Boi, 29, and their two small children are South Vietnamese refugees who fled their country April 29 when the communists were taking control.

A graduate of a seven-year course at the Saigon Medical School, Trinh is a pediatrician. His wife a pharmacist. When he got his diploma, the Vietnamese government put him to work as an internist at a military hospital in DaNang. When the Viet Cong came, he said, he left because "first I'm military and second I wanted my freedom."

Taking only what they could carry, the Trinhns boarded a ship for the Philippines. It was so crowded they had to remain seated for the eight-day voyage.

From the Philippines they flew to Guam and then to a relocation camp at Indian Town Gap, Pa.

Back in Millstadt, the members of the Trinity Lutheran Church decided they wanted to help the newcomers. First they found a job for a janitor but decided that since the town hasn't public transportation it would be difficult to provide proper assistance.

What was needed was a job where the business transported itself. Then someone got the idea of checking for a doctor, something their best efforts had failed to secure.

The Trinhns shortly boarded a plane for St. Louis.

Mrs. Trinh, who speaks little English, says she was "scared—very much."

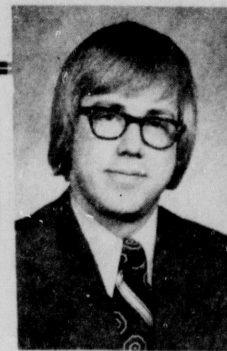

Until they could be set up in more permanent quarters the Trinhns moved in with Trinity's pastor.

Trinh, who must have federal and state certification to practice in the United States, is studying medical and English texts. "I can read the medical books but I cannot talk," he said. He hopes to take the three-day qualification tests next summer. If he passes, 12 months of clinical training will follow.

Meanwhile the family is busy adapting to its new home, trying to learn to like American food and adjusting to the language and customs.

Rural life is something else new to them. The doctor and his wife are from Saigon, Vietnam's largest city.

County problems report is only 18 pages in length

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois taxpayers have spent more than $46,080 over the last two years to finance the work of the legislative County Problems Commissions, which last week released an 18-page biennial report.

The document is the only major formal report the commission produced between 1973 and 1975, said the chairman, Sen. Karl Berning, R-Deerfield.

The 1957 law creating the County Problems Commission declares: "The Commission shall make a detailed report of its findings and conclusions to the General Assembly" at least every two years.

Nine problems were cited in this most recent report, one of them in two sentences, and each starting on a new page.

"We as legislators get literally hundreds of these things," Berning said about reports from commissions like his. "And you know if they get too big, they never get opened. I have them stacked up here by the dozens and I've never opened the cover on them. If it's very short, condensed and concise, then I'll read it. That is part of our thinking."

The commission said its report was based on testimony taken at some 17 public hearings throughout the state.

Among the problems identified by the commission was the deterioration of county and township roads and bridges.

In its report, the commission noted that two other legislative commissions and the Department of Transportation are studying the problem and said it "defers its concentration on this subject with the recommendation that all possible haste be applied to alleviate this problem."

On another problem, a salary scale for county employees, the commission said it "defers comment on this serious problem until further re-evaluation and study in coming deliberations by this or the next Commission."

Regarding the problems of unequal property tax assessment between the various counties, the commission "recommends a basic reform of the property tax, including eventual abandonment of the equalization system."

Berning said the commission sometimes meets to discuss and vote on endorsing legislation dealing with county government.

Most of the commission's expenses were for the salaries of an executive secretary and secretary and travel expenses for the 14 members.

Comptroller's records show the commission spent nearly $13,080 for travel during the some 14 months the hearings were held.

Not all the travel was done in Illinois, however. Records show that the commission last August paid for a four-day trip to Miami Beach for Berning, commission member Rep. John Grothert, R-St. Charles, and commission executive secretary Marilyn Meade.

The trip was to attend a convention of the National Association of Counties, Berning said, which included seminars, speeches and exchange of information on county government.

"The purpose was to discuss with other people from other states their problems, specifically the lack of revenue, and to see if ideas could be gathered to implement in Illinois," Mrs. Meade said.

However, no mention of the convention or any information gained at it was contained in the biennial report.

Mental and physical illness, as well as crime spawned by recession

CHICAGO (AP) — More mental illness, more physical illness and more crime grow out of economic recession, a group of social scientists said Labor Day.

And, they argued, the cost of these consequences is greater than would be the cost of programs to create jobs.

Government officials look only at the direct economic impact of unemployment, they said at the annual convention of the American Psychological Association.

Not only do thefts, robberies and burglaries rise, but so do the rates of suicide, murder of infants, admission to mental hospitals and illness and death from heart and other diseases, they said.

There frequently is a lag of one, two or three years in some of these rates, but already the impact of unemployment is apparent in some of these areas, they added.

Dr. Hannah Levin, professor of psychology at Richmond College, City University of New York, Staten Island, and a political scientist, Dr. Ralph A. Straetz of New York University, studied 45 unemployed men and their families in Brooklyn and Staten Island.

"A most tragic part of each interview," she said, was that 90 per cent of the men blamed themselves for being unemployed and they felt despair about their future.

The children, too, feel the stress of their father's unemployment and expressed the fear that they might have to be given away.

"Physicians prescribe milk and vitamins for children who suffer malnutrition," Dr. Levin pointed out.

So, she said, "It is time psychiatrists and psychologists include the prescription of work as a way to a more meaningful and satisfying life."

"And just as the government has begun to assume some responsibility for feeding the poor with food stamps, it must become national policy to provide full employment for all our citizens who wish to work," she asserted.

Straetz said the unemployment problem is far more severe than depicted by government figures, because many unemployed persons are not counted after they have exhausted their benefits.

He told a news conference that the nation should create permanent public service jobs which would provide meaningful, interesting work over the long term, not emergency make-work programs.

Dr. Lou Ferman of the institute of labor and industrial relations at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, said the consequences of having a job and losing it and getting another and losing it intensify the destructive effect on the individual of being unemployed.

Ninety-two per cent of the work force still is employed so government policy is geared toward keeping this majority happy by trying to control inflation which means no spending for public jobs, he said.

Dr. M. Harvey Brenner of the Johns Hopkins University school of hygiene and public health, Baltimore, said community mental health centers already are recording more admissions.

Accused in knife attack

ROCHELLE — Phillippe Marron, 317 1/2 Lincoln Highway, was jailed Sunday by Rochelle Police on two charges following a knife incident at the Pour House.
Marron was charged with aggravated battery after he allegedly stabbed Salador Manchea, 621 N. Sixth St.
Manchea was treated and released at Rochelle Community Hospital where he received stitches for a wound in the arm. Homeowners are warned by Com Ed

H. W. Donaldson, manager, Dixon-Sterling District for Commonwealth Edison, is warning residents in Northern Illinois again this week to beware of suspicious appearing strangers practicing fraudulent inspection schemes while posing as employees of Commonwealth Edison Company.
These phony "inspectors" have gained access to several homes in Edison territory in recent weeks by claiming they were utility company representatives and needed to inspect the wiring or the appliances in the house. One elderly couple in LaSalle County was defrauded of $80 in such an instance a few weeks ago. An elderly widow residing in Bureau County reported an attempt to defraud her on Friday, but said she did not lose any money or valuables.
Donaldson said householders should demand to see the Edison identification card of any person seeking access to their homes under the guise of an inspector or a meterman. Every Edison employee carries an identification card containing his picture.
In any event, persons with information concerning such "inspection" visits should notify the nearest Edison office as soon as possible. Edison officials also said that except in extreme emergencies Edison representatives do not make inspections inside of residences.

Charges after hit-run

An automobile mishap at Chateau Estates Saturday evening resulted in the issuance of a citation from police for driving too fast for conditions.
Ticketed was Elroy Islas, 22, Chateau Estates. He was proceeding east on Estates Road and attempting a left turn onto Carondelet Road. Islas' car was unable to make the turn because of excessive speed, according to reports. It skidded across the road and struck the parked car of Leroy Madison, 917 Monroe Ave.
Thompson was charged with driving while intoxicated, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, and aggravated assault. He was being held in jail pending arraignment.

Arrested on probation charge

Dixon police arrested Jacob R. Dixon, 21, 1124 Woodlawn Ave., Sunday after his probation had been ordered revoked.
The order which revoked Dixon's probation charged that Dixon had failed to report to the Lee County Probation Officer, Thomas Green, as stipulated when Dixon was placed on probation. Dixon was also charged with illegally leaving the state without the consent of the court, against the terms of his probation.
Dixon is being held in jail. Bond was set at $10,000.

Two charges follow crash

James A. Rodriguez, 24, 627 W. Third St. was arrested by Dixon Police Saturday night on two charges.
Rodriguez reportedly backed his car out of the Lazariz parking lot into a parked vehicle belonging to Bertha Wright, 1208 Ogletree Place. Rodriguez was charged with leaving the scene of a property damage accident and driving while his license was suspended.
Rodriguez was released on bond and is to appear in court September 16.

Saturday accident brings ticket

Dixon Police charged John J. Jenkins, 16, 321 Lincolnway with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.
The accident occurred Saturday night. Jenkins reportedly was eastbound on the 200 block on Lincolnway. His car struck the parked car of James Van Kirk, 214 Lincolnway. The rear of Van Kirk's car was damaged.

Charged after traffic mishap

Johnny Frank Thompson was arrested by Lee County Sheriff's deputies Monday afternoon on four charges stemming from a hit and run accident.
A car owned by William Bardo, 1902 W. Ninth St., was reportedly backed into as it was parked on the 1300 block of Woodlawn Avenue. When Deputy Carol Weiser investigated the report Thompson reportedly returned to the scene.
A fresh damage mark was noticed on Thompson's car, with particles of paint similar to that on Bardo's car.
As Weiser was attempting to match tire marks with Thompson's tires, Thompson reportedly became unruly. When Thompson left the scene, Sheriff Nehring and Detective Blake apprehended him. A scuffle ensued and Thompson was handcuffed and removed to the law enforcement center.
Thompson was charged with driving while intoxicated, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, and aggravated assault. He was being held in jail pending arraignment.

'Can-paign' to help Winning Wheels starts

AMBOY — Operation "can-paign," collecting recyclable beverage cans, for the benefit of Winning Wheels was instigated by Kathy Challand and Rose Davis over the weekend.
They were assisted by a group of youngsters and collected more than 40 bushels during the holiday period. They seek to enlist the aid of interested clubs and individuals in gathering all-aluminum cans which can be sold for recycling, the money earned going to Winning Wheels toward the building of a home at Prophetstown for wheel chair patients.
They explained that not all beverage cans are recyclable as they are not all-aluminum. But it is easy to identify the useable ones as they are lighter in weight, have no seams and, also, if touched with a magnet, the magnet will not stick to any part of the can.
In order to facilitate the storage, the cans can be smashed. Mrs. Arthur Jacobs is assisting with this part of the work by running them through the trash masher. More volunteers are needed.
Kathy and Rose would like to make this a countywide project and hope those interested contact them at 206 S. Jefferson Ave., Amboy, or telephone 857-3834.
Kathy is on the board of directors for Winning Wheels and reports that the board has accepted the architect's design for the home, fill dirt has been hauled to the site of the new home and some grading was accomplished over the holiday weekend.
She mentioned that Betty Crocker coupons, bonus points, and bottle tops of Diet-Rite cola are still being collected by the group.

Senior Party Line

I am 66 years old and my wife is 62. Can we apply for a tax relief grant, or must we both be 65. We are joint owners of our home.—L.W.
Dear Mr. W:

You can apply for the Illinois "circuit breaker"—the program of property tax relief for elderly and disabled residents. Make the application in your name. You will have to report total household income, received by both you and your wife. In order for you to receive a grant, the income must be less than $10,000. Although the property is owned jointly, you will be able to include the full amount of your property tax bill when making the application.

If husband and wife are both over 65, only one can file an application. Even if your home were owned solely by your wife, who is younger than 65, you could still apply for a grant and use the total amount of the property tax. As long as one member of the household meets the age or disability requirements of the law, it is possible to seek a grant. And remember—if your income is less than $10,000 you are also qualified to receive another grant under a program enacted in April 1975. By filling out the circuit breaker form, you will be applying for both programs.

A new veterans' benefit bill was signed into law not long ago. Who does this apply to, and what are the benefits?—E.M.
Dear Mr. M:

The legislation signed on Aug. 5 by the President affects 2.2 million disabled veterans and just under 400,000 survivors of veterans with service-connected disabilities. The major benefits provided include a 10 per cent increase in compensation payments for veterans whose disabilities result in up to 50 per cent incapacity; and a 12 per cent increase for veterans whose disabilities result in an incapacity of 60 per cent or more.

In addition, the new law features a 12 per cent increase in the compensation and indemnity payments made to widows and children. And it increases, from $150 to $175, the annual clothing allowance for disabled vets who use prosthetic or orthopedic appliances, including wheelchairs, which wear out one's clothing. All of these increases became effective on Aug. 1. (Another program, known as the veteran's pension program, applies to those with non-service connected disabilities.)

In a previous column you said that self-employed persons can now set up their own retirement plans without having to cover their employees. But I'm under the impression that this requirement is still in effect. Can you clarify this?—M.V.
Dear Mrs. V.:

Actually, there are two ways self-employed persons can establish their own retirement or pension plans with tax-free advantages. One of them, known as the Keogh plan, has been in existence for several years and has been used by many self-employed persons. Starting this year, however, the amount that can be set aside in such a plan has been greatly increased, from $2,500 to $7,500 (maximum) tax-free. Those who establish a Keogh plan, though, must continue to make similar contributions to the plan on behalf of their full-time employees who have been on the job for three years or more. If you set aside five per cent of your income for the pension plan, you also must set aside five per cent of your employees' incomes.

The other plan, entirely new in 1975, is known as the Individual Retirement Account. Self-employed persons who use this method do not have to set aside money for their employees. The amount that can be put into an "IRA," however, is less than the $7,500 maximum allowed by the Keogh plan. An Individual Retirement Account may hold 15 per cent of your annual salary, up to a maximum of $1,500 a year.

The money that is placed in one of these do-it-yourself pension plans is excluded from your reportable income for federal tax purposes. And the interest earned on the account is also tax-free. Whether you would be interested in the Keogh plan or an Individual Retirement Account depends on your particular situation—how many employees you have, whether it is a full- or part-time operation. Be sure to look into the pros and cons of both. It's also possible to start with the smaller plan for a few years and then switch to the larger plan where greater annual deposits can be made.

Persons may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline 800-252-6565 with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

In Dixon persons may call the Lee County Council for Aging 288-2117.

Another trial ahead for Rep. Borchers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Rep. Webber Borchers will stand trial alone again on charges he conspired with former Rep. Christian Homeier III to misuse legislative expense allowances.

Borchers, a Decatur Republican serving his fourth term in the Illinois House, and Homeier, a Springfield Republican who served from 1969-70, were indicted several months ago by federal and county grand juries on charges stemming from their use of their expense allowances.

Borchers was acquitted of mail fraud and conspiracy charges this week in U.S. District Court. Homeier had pleaded guilty earlier to the charges.

Homeier pleaded guilty again Friday to theft and official misconduct in the Circuit Court case.

Borchers requested a trial, however, and Judge Richard Mills set Oct. 14 as the date.

Both the state and federal government contended Homeier and Borchers submitted expense claims to the state for secretarial work which was never performed. Homeier's secretary signed the vouchers, the government said.

In his federal trial, Borchers admitted participating in the arrangement, but said he did so to obtain money to pay an undercover investigator to infiltrate radical student groups.

He said he felt it was his patriotic and legislative duty to conduct investigations of this nature.

Homeier agreed to plead guilty in Circuit Court to 17 counts of theft and two of official misconduct in exchange for the dismissal of numerous charges of perjury, conspiracy and theft.

Asst. State's Atty. Wayne Gombold told Judge Mills he would also ask that Homeier be sentenced to serve the same prison sentence which he may receive in the federal court. He said Homeier would serve the terms concurrently should he be sentenced to prison.

From Bob Gibson Day

Brock gets inspiration

ST. LOUIS (AP)—It was Bob Gibson Day at Busch Stadium, but teammate Lou Brock drew the inspiration. And the 36-year-old Brock, impressed by a pregame program honoring Gibson, responded Monday by driving the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-3 win over the Chicago Cubs.

"I would say seeing it put sparks in everybody," commented Brock, who parlayed three singles and three stolen bases into two Cards runs.

"You don't see that very often," he said in respect to the home plate ceremony. "It doesn't happen often. A club can use that as a vehicle to get charged up."

Whether St. Louis, which is three games back in the National League East, can use the departing Gibson as an inspiration in a late title drive remains to be seen.

But both Brock and a season's high throng of 48,345 had visions as the club opened its final month on a high note.

"We left this proclamation open-ended because we don't quite know how he's going to write that final chapter to a glorious career," Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said during the salute to Gibson.

And Gibson, during his response, alluded to further hopes by noting "the day I take off this uniform, which should be after the World Series, it's going to be a new life, a strange life for me."

Once the ceremony was over, Brock wasted little time in making Chicago the victim of his 50th theft of the year, extending to 11 his major league record for consecutive seasons with 50 or more piracies.

Two pitches later he pilfered third to set up the Cards' first run in the opening inning and two innings later he beat out an infield hit following Bob Forsch's double.

Brock swiped second again as Cubs right-hander Bill Bonham, 11-13, made his next delivery, reached third and then scored on a passed ball and eventually scored again on a double play grounder to establish a 3-0 St. Louis lead.

"He's a good baserunner, that's all I can say," said Chicago Manager Jim Marshall in an evaluation of Brock's still-dazzling skills.

"I thought Bonham pitched pretty well," Marshall added in reference to the Cubs' starter, whose team never caught up in spite of two Andre Thornton solo homers.

Brock's thefts boosted his career total of 805, second only to Ty Cobb's 892 in baseball annals, and represented the 17th time he has swiped three bases in a game.

"Not for him you don't," Cards Manager Red Schoendienst said in respect to a needed special stimulus such as the pregame show for the swift Brock. "He might turn it on a little more," Schoendienst conceded, "but he's capable of going out and stealing three bases anytime."

Killebrew's homer dooms Chicago

By HERSCHEL NISSENER
AP Sports Writer

The Kansas City Royals lost two players Monday ... and won a ballgame.

First, starting pitcher Nelson Briles had to leave after blanking the Chicago White Sox for three innings when his knee began acting up. Doug Bird took over and yielded one run and six hits the rest of the way.

However, Bird didn't become a winner until Hal McRae hurt his rib cage fouling off a pitch in the eighth inning of a 1-1 deadlock. Harmon Killebrew pinch hit and creamed a 2-2 pitch from Claude Osteen into the left field seats for his 571st career homer and the Royals' first in eight games.

The two-run shot was Killebrew's 12th of the season and enabled the Royals to win 3-1 and split their Labor Day doubleheader. But the Royals dropped the opener 10-8 and, coupled with Oakland's 6-3 triumph over California, left Kansas City eight games behind the A's in the American League's West Division.

The New York Yankees turned back Boston 4-2, chopping the Red Sox' lead in the AL East to 5½ games over the idle Baltimore Orioles, who were rained out of a doubleheader against Cleveland. Elsewhere, the Minnesota Twins beat the Texas Rangers 5-3 and the Detroit Tigers edged the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

"I've never lost a game like that," moaned White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner after Killebrew's wallop. "They get two guys hurt and then two guys come in and get the job done for them."

In the opener, Chicago trailed KC's Steve Busby 4-0 after 1½ innings but Bill Melton cracked a three-run homer to cap a five-run third inning and Jorge Orta drove in three runs on three hits.

A's 6, Angels 3
Billy Williams and Reggie Jackson slammed two-run homers as Oakland rallied from a 3-1 first-inning deficit to beat the Angels. Jackson drove in a third run with a double while Vida Blue finished with a four-hitter for his 18th victory.

Yankees 4, Red Sox 2
Rick Dempsey, Rick Bladt and Fred Stanley, the tail end of the New York batting order, keyed the Yankees' 14-hit attack against Roger Moret and Dick Pole. Doc Medich blanked the Red Sox for six innings, survived a Boston rally in the seventh and needed help from Tippy Martinez in the eighth. Stanley collected three hits while Dempsey, Bladt, Walt Williams and Roy White had two apiece and Bladt, Stanley, Dempsey and Sandy Alomar delivered run-scoring hits.

Twins 5, Rangers 4
Phil Roof hit a solo home run and a two-run single to lead the Twins over the Rangers and Ferguson Jenkins. Roof tied the score 1-1 with his sixth homer of the year. The Twins took a 2-1 lead in the fifth on a single by Lyman Bostock, an error and a single by Rod Carew and chased Jenkins with three runs in the sixth after the Rangers' mound ace bobbled a grounder to start the inning.

Tigers 5, Brewers 4
Bill Freehan poked a 3-0 pitch for a run-scoring single to cap a four-run rally against four Milwaukee pitchers in the seventh inning.

National League
Tom Seaver, Bob Gibson and Randy Jones: three outstanding pitchers at contrasting points in their careers.

Jones is at the beginning, on the rise, just starting to realize the wonders he is capable of working; Seaver is at the peak, a star shining brightest; Gibson is nearing the conclusion, one who has been to the top and still retains a touch of the class which carried him to greatness.

All three had big days Monday: Seaver blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates on four hits, struck out 10 and set a major league record with his eighth consecutive season with 200 or more strikeouts in pitching the New York Mets to a 3-0 triumph, becoming the first 20-game winner in the National League.

Gibson, who will be retiring at the end of this season at age 39, was honored by a sellout crowd at Busch Stadium in St. Louis on "Bob Gibson Day" and heard salutes from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Cards chairman August A.

Oklahoma is the choice

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—The Oklahoma Sooners are more blase — or more realistic — this year about being the pre-season choice as the nation's top college football team, and Coach Barry Switzer isn't sure they even deserve it.

"The cats around here don't think about it so much any more," said All-American half-back Joe Washington. "It's the final outcome after all that blood and sweat and tears that counts."

Washington pointedly noted that the Sooners were No. 1 in last year's preseason poll, too — and lost the slot after a relatively narrow victory over Southwest Conference champion Baylor.

This year the Sooners racked up 54 first-place votes and 1,184 points from the sports writers and sportscasters who make up The Associated Press board.

The board voted Alabama second, including one first-place vote; Michigan, also with one first-place vote, third, and Ohio State, with three votes for

No. 1, fourth. Southern California was picked fifth; Penn State, with one first-place vote, sixth; Nebraska seventh; Auburn eighth; Texas A&M ninth, and Notre Dame 10th.

The second top 10 positions went to Texas, Michigan State, North Carolina State, UCLA, Florida, Arizona, Maryland, Tennessee, Arkansas and Stanford.

Switzer was more concerned with the three meager points on the scoreboard after Saturday's scrimmage than with the top-heavy vote.

"We're not deserving today. We're not ready to play by any means," said Switzer, whose record in two years as a head coach is blemished only by a tie with Southern California.

He was obviously upset with Saturday's practice and said the team would work every day this week instead of tapering off, as he had planned.

The top rating last year was a marvelous balm for a team on probation — and banned from TV and bowl games — for recruiting violations. The probation and bowl banishment are over, but the TV ban remains through this season.

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press preseason college football poll with first-place votes in parentheses, last year's records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Busch and a telegram praising his career from President Ford.

—Jones scattered nine hits and raised his record to 18-9 by hurling the San Diego Padres to a 2-1 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia nipped Philadelphia 6-5, Los Angeles beat San Francisco 3-1 and Houston topped Atlanta 5-3.

Seaver needed just 95 pitches — "maybe an all-time low for me" — to stop the hard-hitting Pirates and raise his record to 20-7, joining Baltimore's Jim Palmer with 20 wins. The shut-out lowered his earned run average to 2.07, best among major league starting pitchers.

When Seaver blazed a fast-ball past Manny Sanguillen in the seventh inning it marked the eighth consecutive year he has fanned 200 or more batters, a feat never before accomplished. Rube Waddell and Walter Johnson had seven consecutive 200-plus years.

The victory, Seaver's sixth in a row, lifted the Mets to within four games of the first-place Pirates in the four-team NL East dogfight. St. Louis is three games out, the Phils tied with the Mets at four.

Padres 2, Reds 1
Randy Jones scattered nine hits to post his 18th victory of the season. Dave Winfield was San Diego's batting star with three hits and two runs scored.

Expos 6, Phils 5
Tim Lincecum drilled a tie-breaking double with two out in the ninth inning and scored the winning tally on a single by relief pitcher Dale Murray as the Expos handed Philadelphia its third loss in a row in a nationally televised game.

Dodgers 3, Giants 1
Right-hander Burt Hooton, 14-9, stopped the Giants on six hits for his eighth consecutive victory. Lee Lacy drove in a pair of runs and scored the other for Los Angeles.

Astros 5, Braves 3
Cesar Cedeno's two-run double in the fourth inning helped Houston to victory as starter Doug Konieczny, 6-12, gained his first victory since July 30 with relief help from Dave Roberts and Joe Niekro.

It's well-known that Ohio State's Archie Griffin and Oklahoma's Joe Washington rank 1-2 among returning rushers in career yardage (3,820 and 3,124, respectively), but quick now, who's third? The answer is Kentucky's Sonny Collins at 2,685 yards.

Minnesota defeats Miami

By The Associated Press
Quarterback Fran Tarkenton and the Minnesota Vikings' touted defensive front four seem to be in mid-season form.

"I don't know if you can believe the stuff you hear about Minnesota's front four getting old," said Miami quarterback Bob Griese. They're still awfully quick." He was speaking of veterans Alan Page, Carl Eller, Jim Marshall, Unsung Doug Sutherland, who beat out Greg Larsen last year, is the other member of the group.

Tarkenton hit 15 of 21 passes for 214 yards and two touchdowns Monday night in leading the Vikings to a 20-7 victory over Miami in a nationally televised National Football League preseason game. With the Minnesota defense pouring it on, Griese managed only one completion in eight tries for eight yards during his first period of action at Bloomington, Minn. In Monday's only other NFL contest, the Buffalo Bills downed the Cleveland Browns 34-20 as Joe Ferguson tossed for two touchdowns and rookie Tom Donchez scored twice.

In Saturday's action, it was Miami's loss was its first after three victories in preseason play and left Oakland and the Giants, both 4-0, as the only undefeated clubs. Minnesota is now 2-2.

Tarkenton, a veteran of 14 NFL campaigns who helped put the Vikings in the Super Bowl the past two seasons, threw touchdowns passes of four yards to Steve Craig and 44 yards to Jim Lash, who squeezed between Miami defenders Charlie Babb and Jake Scott to pull in pass.

Tarkenton also took the Vikings 73 yards in eight plays to set up Dave Osburn's one-yard run and give Minnesota a 20-0 lead near the close of the third period.

Norm Bulaich romped from 53 yards out for Miami's only TD with 9:40 remaining. By that time the regular front four of the Vikings were watching the reserves get game time.

Although Buffalo Coach Lou Saban came out a winner on a muddy field in Cleveland he was upset that his defense permitted Browns' quarterback Mike Phipps to pile up 315 yards passing on 20 of 34 completions. Buffalo is now 2-2 and Cleveland 1-3.

Saban, however, had to be pleased with the work of quarterbacks Ferguson and Gary Marangi, who combined for 20 of 34 passes for 271 yards.

Another bright spot was Donchez, a rookie from Penn State who is facing the possibility of being cut because of Buffalo's backfield strength. He scored on a one-yard run and fell on a kickoff when the Browns let fall in the end zone for a TD.

The weekend contests proved costly for several clubs. Defensive end Claude Humphrey is lost to Atlanta for the season after undergoing knee surgery Sunday while New Orleans' quarterback Archie Manning (arm injury) and Jets' backup QB Al Woodall (knee) are lost for about a month.
